2 Vaccaro's was established in 1956 by Gioacchino Vaccaro, or Mr. Jimmy as he was so aptly known. It didn't take long before they created a sensation among Baltimoreans with their specialty Italian delicacies, such as their to-die-for rum cake and out-of-this-world cannoli. Today Nick Vaccaro continues the family tradition begun by his father with the same old world recipes brought over from Italy. Vaccaro's has grown to include the new Pasticceria (pastry shop) which offers both carry out and a sit down café at a state of the art production facility and warehouse and five other locations throughout Baltimore and the surrounding areas. For a sure fire way to satisfy your sweet tooth, definitely make room for the dessert at Vaccaro's. Here's a challenge, order the "Original Colosseo," a homemade Belgian Waffle with vanilla gelato and strawberries with wet nuts and whipped cream topping. It's delicious, but I bet you can't finish it with any less than four people.

It's a hands-on museum for children and their families with Exhibits that include: Hard Hats (transportation and construction), Watermen (a dock and boat to climb aboard and pretend), Bay Window (live native animals), Around the World (a home, marketplace, and rainforest in Colombia), Express Yourself (a help-yourself art workshop), Body Works (a bigger than life-size model of the human body with removable internal organs plus a dentist office) and Center Stage (lots of theatrical costumes and a child-size stage). The museum is set in a woodland park at the head of Spa Creek. A nature trail and several gardens are on the property. The Spa Creek Trail passes through the park and leads to Truxtun Park or to Maryland Hall for the Creative Arts. They also have published a book similar to ours on traveling through Anne-Adrudle County and Annapolis. We highly recommend this book.
